Ecocriticism Review
No.14 2021
CONTENTS

Leading Article
The Representation of Bats in Mohsin Hamid’s The Reluctant Fundamentalist ---------- SHIOTA Hiroshi 1

Articles
The Ecological Weird in Jeff VanderMeer’s Southern Reach Trilogy ----------- David FARNELL 10
Where Seductive Fungi Spread: Contextualizing Cold War Japan in Ishiro Honda’s Matango and William Hope Hodgson’s “The Voice in the Night” ----------- WATANABE Mariko 21
Fedallah and the Ogasawara (Bonin) Islands: Ambiguous Images of Asians in Moby-Dick ------------------------------- TSUJI Shoko 33
Weaving Nova Scotian Minority Environmental Movements Together: Environmental Racism and “Women” in There’s Something in the Water ------------------------ ARAKI Yoko, KISHINO Hidemi 46

Special Series: Ecocriticism Masterpieces——Weirding Ecology
Summary of the Series ------------------------------- David FARNELL 57
The Ecological Weird in Jeff VanderMeer’s Southern Reach Trilogy ----------- David FARNELL 57
Where Seductive Fungi Spread: Cold War Japan in Ishiro Honda’s Matango and William H. Hodgson’s “The Voice in the Night” ----------- WATANABE Mariko 58
The Weird World and Non-Human Beings in Hiromi Goto’s Half World ----------- KISHINO Hidemi 58

An Essay on Environmental Literature
To Study Bees, To Learn From Bees ------------------------------- FUKAI Michiko 60

The Regulations of the Society for Ecocriticism Studies in Japan
Manuscript Submission
Editor’s Postscript

The Society for Ecocriticism Studies in Japan